Nazi Naval Base Hit In Night Raid

LONDON, July 12.—(CP)—British sent some of her heaviest bombers back over the Channel today after a night assault in a thunderstorm on the German naval base of Wilhelmshaven, and the day raiders were reported authoritatively to have pounded railway and canal communications in the St. Omer area.

Five German fighters were destroyed and two British fighters are missing, it was reported, in this assault just behind the invasion coast in the northwest corner of France close to the British frontier.

Observers on the southeast coast said mid-day fighters were alive with fighters protecting very large bombers.

MINESWEPER SET AFIRE

A minesweeper said not a plane was lost in the night sweep along the German coast.

It announced also that a German minesweeper was set afire by a direct hit from a Hudson bomber yesterday afternoon off the coast of France.

German raids overnight were reported by the ministries of air and home security to have been on a fairly small scale.

Bombers dropped on the northeast English coast caused some damage and a small number of casualties, including a few deaths.

The British raid brought R.A.F. attacks on Germany and Nazi occupied territory. A force of 150 marksmen began their war against German pilots.

An authoritative statement reviewing the steadily increasing weight of the R.A.F.'s blows said the British planes in taking a constant battering of German pilots.

"Only a small proportion of German pilots bail out safely," the statement said. "Although most of the daily fighter combats are occurring over Germany—occupied territory, the Nazis are losing much more heavily in planes than we did during the battle of Britain."

The statement quoted reports of 12 R.F. pilots describing repeated instances in which German fighters were literally blown to bits by cannon fire and declared that the weight of British bombs dropped on Germany and occupied territory dropped on Britain in April, which was claimed by the British as a record one.

The statement promised that the July weight will be heavier still.

Confiscate Ships

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP)—Treasury Secretary Morgenthau Friday ordered formal confiscation proceedings against 13 Italian and one German merchant ship which were alleged to have been salvaged in United States waters in March.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP)—The United States navy published notice Friday of its plans to mine the entrance to New York harbor in an area of 100 square miles.

A navy hydrographic report warned shipping to avoid the area in which army mine planters were placing land mines, marked by the spheres in the water.

The spheres in the water, it was said, were in New York's lower bay.

Fighting Is Stopped To Talk Terms

BEIRUT, Lebanon, July 12.—(AP)—Gen. Henri Donta, the Vichy commander-in-chief in Syria, has entered into direct negotiations with the Allies looking toward an armistice after the refusal of the British government to accept Allied terms, it was announced officially today.

FREE TO NEGOTIATE

Gen. Dentz said as soon as he received word from Vichy that the latest negotiation terms had been turned down by the British government, he at once gave the order to accept. Vichy left Gen. Dentz free to negotiate an armistice if he thought it the better course for the Allied headquarters.

Birds at Lloydminster Like Chimneys for Resting Places

Possibly due to weather conditions, two reports have reached Lloydminster of birds descending chimneys. A woodpecker got into difficulty exploring the chimney at the residence of Mrs. A. J. Nichols, in town. Hearing the fluttering noise, Mrs. Nichols thought that a sparrow had flown down the chimney but she was unable to get to where the noise came from.

Gradually the bird worked its way down and finally got into the stove. Having to cook dinner, Mrs. Nichols took off the lids of the stove and found the bird perched on a large piece of wood. The bird was a bright red-top and black, grey and yellow feathers. The bird seemed none the worse for his two-day experience but it is questionable if he will tackle a chimney the next time he is looking for a good hole.

Hearing a disturbance around her heater that had not been used since spring, Mrs. J. N. Charters, who retired, was master mechanic of Leduc Collieries for the past 18 years.

been rough, the duck might have been able to work its way out to the top, but being smooth and slippery, apparently all it could do was to work its way back and forth many as 4,500 times.

Some telephone cables contain as many as 4,500 wires.

New Teachers Main Feature School Meeting

Mrs. A. M. K. Perton was appointed to the junior room of the Turville school, and F. C. McDowell was appointed principal.

Two Red Deer girls, Jean McElvride and Jean Tyll, have returned from a holiday in the mountains, the envy of their girl friends after the experience of meeting Myrna Lay, Hollywood movie actress. The girls were in the Red Deer camp about four miles from Banff on Saturday when Miss Lay and her husband, Arthur, were there, who were visiting in Banff, passed them on their way to the stars.

Close to 250 people have registered at the camp meeting of the Alberta district of the Church of the Nazarene which is being held here. Final day of the camp is Sunday, when many more visitors are expected.

Dr. R. V. Miller, of Kansas City, Missouri, general superintendent of the church, is main speaker this year, assisted by leading pastors of the Alberta district. Rev. D. Swartz is camp director. Music is being directed by Rev. Wm. Bapiste, Miss Clara Christensen and Mrs. Ernest Armstrong. Miss Christensen, Mrs. Edward Lawlor and Miss Gunnell Berglund are in charge of the children's work.

Camrose Town Is Centre For Rich District

size and quality. An adequate representation of nearly all lines of business is found in Camrose, as well as professional offices.

DISTRIBUTING CENTRE

The importance of Camrose as a distributing point is seen in the numerous automobile, farm implement and machinery agents located in the town. A wholesale grocery, two fruit warehouses and a wholesale auto supply also operate in Camrose.

Camrose is situated in one of the most thickly populated and fertile areas of the province. In this district are thousands of occupied farms and 50 towns and villages. All the usual products of a mixed farming district are produced here in abundance.

In all respects the town of Camrose is up-to-date. The citizens enjoy a fully modern service as re-sards electric lighting, waterworks and sewerage.

A visitor to the town is immediately impressed with its wide, boulevarded streets; its well-kept lawns and its substantial, attractive homes, with trees and shrubbery everywhere in evidence. Many of the citizens take great pride in their beautiful gardens.

HOW TOWN NAMED

The townsite was originally called Sparring after the Rev. D. Sparring, noted churchman of Winnipeg. However, this name was not approved by the post office department. Due to another similar name being listed on the Canadian post office directory.

The present name of Camrose was chosen for its British namesake, settling among the hills of Wales. At the time of year when the question of the new name arose, the banks of the winding creek through the town was covered with wild roses. Cam—crooked stream—and rose—old hills. Camrose! A name beautiful in itself and aptly chosen.

U.S. Occupation Of Iceland Blow To Nazis Stated

MOSCOW, July 12.—(AP)—S. A. Lozovsky, vice-commissioner of foreign affairs, said Friday the sending of United States forces to Iceland was "a painful blow" to Germany.

"It means that Mr. Roosevelt has dealt not his first but by far not his last blow," he said.

"This struggle for the Atlantic is becoming wider and growing in ferocity. It means that the Atlantic will become smaller for Hitler and his allies."

"What forms and methods Britain and the United States will adopt for the further struggle we shall see in the very near future."

Japan Not Vassal Of German State Consul Declares

VICTORIA, July 12.—(CP)—

"We're not going to pull Germany's chestnuts out of the fire," Ichiro Kawanishi, recently appointed Japanese consul at Vancouver, said Friday in an interview on the far eastern situation.

"We are not committed too deeply to the Axis and are not vassals of Germany," he added.

Mr. Kawanishi, who spent four years in the Japanese embassy in London, declared the Germans were difficult people to get along with but that the British were compromising. He hoped for a renewal of trade relations between Great Britain, Canada and Japan.

"We have much in common with the British people," he continued. "Like them we are a seafaring nation and depend on world trade. We are not like the Germans. They are ruthless and uncouth."

The New Town Planning

By CECIL S. BURGESS, F.R.A.I.C.
Hon. Sec. Edmonton Town Planning Commission

10-Regulation Of Residential Districts

I HAVE already referred to the general restriction of selling back houses in residential districts a certain distance from the street line. This is simply making a regulation of what has long been accepted as a desirable custom. It gives a space for front gardens and improves the appearance of residential streets.

On the whole, the residential districts of our modern cities are their most characteristic and most satisfactory feature. Modern business streets present a very irregular appearance. Buildings of the poorest character of one story are jostled by solidly built buildings of many stories in height and the latter are built with no regard to mutual harmony. In addition to this, rampant advertising signs feature the architectural qualities of the buildings. In residential quarters the buildings themselves, it is true, are often of very conflicting character; but this is because of the fact that most of them are more or less screened by bushes and trees of which the eye takes more account than of the buildings themselves.

DEMAND CONSIDERATION

So much for the presentation to the street. The sides and rears of dwellings demand consideration and regulation. Our intense individualism often demands that we should not do what we like on our own property. The answer is, "your neighbor has a right to consider, especially in the matter of light and air, and consideration for the other fellow does not cease even in your backyard." Hence it is usual to require that houses in residential districts be set back, not only from the street lines, but also from the side and rear lines. One often hears the complaint that our houses are placed much too close together. It is interesting to note how this situation has arisen.

About thirty-five years ago there was a great real estate boom in the city of Edmonton. It was believed or made-believe that the city was shortly going to be a city of gas, oil, and coal. As a result, many real estate men came in and purchased large blocks of land. In order that these might be sold in smaller parcels, with more profit to the original purchasers, streets and avenues were hastily laid out and the blocks enclosed by these were divided up into lots for houses.

The general principle upon which this was done was that the streets were laid out on the plan at 66 feet wide—the length of a surveyor's chain—and the blocks were made 8 chains, or 528 feet long. The width allowed between streets was four chains plus 16 feet for a central lane. The length of eight chains was then subdivided into 16 lots of 33 feet wide. Each building lot thus became half a chain wide and two chains deep, that is to say 33 feet in frontage and 132 feet in depth, an area of one tenth of an acre.

BETTER METHOD

Better method than this might have been adopted but, at least, it saved us from a worse one. In the cases in which this method was adopted, no lot may be less than 33 feet in width. The framers of the zoning bylaws, faced with this situation, made a regulation that houses must be set back at least one tenth of the width of the lot on each side of the lot, that is to say three feet four inches. The minimum space between houses is thus five feet eight inches.

Houses built before the passing of the bylaw are sometimes closer than this. The width of the house is consequently limited to twenty-six feet four inches. This is a fair allowance for a small house. The small space between houses, while not admitting of any view, at least provides for circulation of air around the building and for increased facility for ventilation.

I have already referred to the Edmonton provisions for schools, parks and local business centres convenient to all residential districts and to the desirability of providing all conveniences that will encourage local community spirit.

It is sometimes suggested that there should be as all round equality in the division of lots so that no one should be permitted to have a larger lot than his neighbor. This arises from a mistaken conception of democracy, which confuses it with communism. Some persons take a great pleasure in their houses and gardens, others, having interior interests in other directions, find it merely a burden to expand care and cost on these particular aims. It is reasonable that each should be free to act according to his natural bent and interests. A perfectly good case, however, can be made for a minimum size of house lot, both on grounds of health and from a social point of view. This will be further considered later when the question of low-cost housing comes to be discussed.

In any community there is a proportion of persons who do not require a separate house and garden at all. This includes elderly couples, young children have left them on their own road of life and also young persons either single or married, and light children. For these apartments or a convenient means of light house-keeping.

For the purpose of zoning bylaws apartment houses are known as multiple dwellings. Although there are districts distinguished by multiple dwelling districts, it should be noted that no district is likely to be occupied by very large cities, to be occupied solely or even chiefly by apartment houses. An authority on town planning, of great practical experience, has this to say: "Multiple dwellings are not inclined to form separate and distinct groups. Their locations should be controlled if other types of dwelling districts are to be preserved."

ABSORBING VALUES

It is not attempting to create values by its own design and arrangement, but rather is absorbing values already created by single family and two family dwellings. The greater efficiency secured a greater economic return for its promoters rather than more open space for its occupants. It is a fact of experience that must be carefully noted that no type building lends more inevitably to deterioration than the average apartment house. The crowding of these with more persons than should properly be accommodated in them has been found to be the most fruitful source of congestion of population and the development of slum conditions.

The average apartment is I propose to discuss the difficult question of housing for people of low incomes.

Land Department

Sales Still High
Edmonton's city land department continues to do a boom business and sales since July 1 have exceeded the $7,500 mark to bring the total to one tenth of an acre.

United Church Young People's Sylvan Lake Camp Starts July 21

Two Guide Companies Return From Period "Under Canvas"

Having gained much practical experience in outdoor guide work, the Third Riverdale and Tenth St. Stephen's Guide companies returned from camping at the Edmonton divisional camp-site at South Cooking lake this week.

An advance party of St. Stephen's Rangers preceded them to get camp ready for the Guides, and next afternoon the Guides, under the supervision of Miss M. H. Smith, captain of the two companies, left the R.C.M.P. barracks in cars and trucks.

While sleeping under canvas and cooking all meals over camp fires the Guides included swimming, hiking, games, and a study of nature, camp and woodcraft in their daily routine.

Miss Betty P. Martin, provincial camp adviser, and Mrs. Swallow, Edmonton district commissioner, inspected the camp Friday. Visiting day was Sunday for parents and friends, who spent the day examining outdoor living quarters of the Guides.

On the last night, a most entertaining campfire program was staged, under the direction of the nurse, Miss Elinor McDermid, and the life-saver, Miss Madeline Hatch.

Lady Cubmasters Evince Courage

That the lady cubmasters of Britain are playing their part alongside the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides is evidenced by the citation which accompanied the presentation of the Scout Gift Cross for gallantry to Robert Rosewarne.

An enemy plane flew low over the campsite in which she was visiting a friend one evening and a bomb fell close at hand, bringing the ceiling down upon them. Fleeing herself, Miss Rosewarne continued the search for her friend, and he was found in the house. Together they were making their way to safety when another large bomb fell nearby, again burying them in debris.

Miss Rosewarne's friends took care of her baby, her brother, and her rescue work a short distance away, while Miss Rosewarne herself started to dig out a man who had been buried up to his neck.

Several times the plane returned and machine-gunned the spot while she was at work, but she continued until she had freed the man with the exception of one of his feet, upon which there was a large pile of stones, too heavy for her to move.

With the help of her brother, the plane was finally driven away, and a passing car was stopped to take all the rescued people to hospital.

Cub Pack Enjoys Three Days At Cooking Lake Camp Grounds

Members of St. Faith's Second Wolf Cub pack spent three days camping at the campsite at Cooking Lake recently, as 24 senior Cubs of the pack gathered together. From the moment tents were pitched until the Cubs piled into cars homebound board, the period was a continual round of action and fun.

Favored with warm weather, the campers were able to get full enjoyment out of swimming and water sports. Diving and boating provided plenty of fun as well as water polo games and swimming contests. Bathing, however, was only a part of a crowded camp program which included campfires, marshmallow and popcorn roasts, treasure hunts and a multitude of other exciting stunts and events. Sports of all kinds were included in the program. Among these, a recently completed treasure hunt was won by Kay Stevie and Jim Stevie.

The Cubs were divided into two groups for competitive purposes during the camp. The White Six led by Gordon Greenwood and the Silver Six by Maurice Buxton. The Silver Six eventually topped the prize for the best group, with a score of seven events to five.

Stories in Stamps

Mexican Stamp Combines Ancient, Modern Symbols

The monuments of Mexico's ancient city are united in modern transport in the Mexican airmail stamp above, of the 1941-42 series of nine values and designs.

Central design of the stamp is a plane flying over Popocatepetl and Teotihuacan, two Mexico's most famous mountains. Surrounding this scene is a circular design, probably the artist's conception of the Aztec calendar stone.

In the foreground, centre, is the Pyramid of the Sun. Although the actual pyramid at Teotihuacan has 248 steps, the stamp shows only 13, the number of months in the Sacred Year. The pyramid of the stamp shows five steps corresponding to those of the real temple.

The lettering was inspired by Aztec designs found in ancient tombs.

Tuxis Campers

Thank Leaders For Vacation

Trail Rangers and Tuxis Boy camp at Lake Wabamun this week drew a close with all boys enrolled for the outdoor thrills expressing the utmost appreciation for their leadership during the six days.

More than 30 members of the organization were able to take part in the camp work. Leaders were Rev. D. McInnes, campmaster; Rev. W. J. Huston, Blackie O. Cyprian, Edmonton, and D. Carr, Calgary. Camp director was Hans Candelman, while Roy Bates was in charge of sports and aquatics.

Activities "under canvas" included sports, dips in the lake, vegetable campfire ceremonies, handicraft and badge-work. Field study and exercises, special interest was shown in diamond willow cutting, arpeggine work and felt work. Students were issued on yell songs, cleanliness, sportsmanship and badge awards.

IDEAL SPOT

All campers judged the campsite an ideal spot. Cabins were kept in excellent condition and dining room facilities were outstanding. Meals all made a hit with the members.

Sunday workshop service was conducted by Mr. Huston. Choir consisted of ten boys trained by Orlanor Cyprian. In appreciation of their vacation, the campers presented a flag to the club and gifts were made with each of the cooks. Much of the success, officials said, was due to co-operation between different committees.

25 Scouts Camp At Wapiti River

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin: GRANDE PRAIRIE, July 12.—Twenty-five Boy Scouts, ranging in age from 12 to 13 years, are in camp above the Wapiti river, eight miles from town. They are in charge of Scoutmaster Rev. T. Dale Jones assisted by Mr. Fryer.

Five tents, each with its dish rack and cup stand made by the boys from logs, surround the camp. A door stove and camp fire site where the boys take turns at the age and kitchen duties cheerfully. Swimming in the river below, the current as well as to improve their strokes. One of the leaders is making plans to cast a line for trout and has secured a small brown trout. As well as regular and campfire work.

The Wapiti is an ideal site for some fishing, nature lore and outdoor woodcraft so useful to boys. Flat-bottomed boats, propelled by poles are the principal means of transportation in Poland's Pripet marshes.

Many women are studying radio mechanics. Miss Blodgett had but recently passed her examinations with high marks, was waiting for the day when a ship would be hers.

No men volunteered for the job; they preferred safer berths on the Great Lakes. Ottawa was queried as to whether a woman could fill the spot. It was the first request of its kind, but the need was great.

Fern got the job and within four hours of being notified, the former stenographer had packed and taken the train for Montreal and her new job, a radio spot of her own. She is paid $170 a month and her board.

Most of the girls in training here as radio operators are taking evening courses. About a year is required before they pass their examinations for a first or second class wireless operators' certificate. It is a new line for girls, but is a development from the stage of amateur radio operating.

"Miss Sparks"

Fern Blodgett, former Toronto stenographer, merely smiles when you talk of wartime perils at sea. Pictured above at ship's radio office, she's now on the job as the first woman radio operator to sail the North Atlantic.

There were memories of Bart as a member of the B.Y. Central Council of 1935-36. He was a keen worker in that organization, and he was many winter evenings spent at the Y.M.C.A. when, with Bart, boys' work secretary at that time, and Mrs. T. Rose, general secretary, then and now, club problems were thrashed out with Bart along with the boys.

There were memories too of working with Bart in past Boys' and Girls' Pairs. The last year that he was connected with the organization was the year that Harvey Porter was managing director. Bart was called upon at the last minute to assist, and his vigorous personality, his ever-bubbling character, and his big, happy grin that accompanied his "gang" greeting, will never be forgotten by any who worked with him.

Bart wasn't the sort of chap who would want to be thought of in glowing phrases or biographical. As I knew him, Bart would be happy to be regarded as a "well guy, one of the best." Bart's departure for overseas was no good, but his memory will never pass.

He was truly a swell guy, one of the best.

Ex-Stenographer Sails Ocean As First Girl Radio Operator

TORONTO, Ont., July 12.—"Miss Sparks" is off to the maritime wars. Pretty Fern Blodgett, Toronto stenographer, pulled a cover over her trusty typewriter the other day, put shorthand symbols out of her mind in favor of the international Morse code, boarded a large Britain-bound cargo ship in Montreal—and thus embarked on a career as the first girl radio operator on the peril-fraught North Atlantic.

"Sparks" on a ship has always been a young man, until Fern changed the custom because a male operator decided at the last moment he did not want to make the dangerous trans-Atlantic crossing. A call went out for an operator, and among others receiving the call was the Toronto school where Fern Blodgett and a half-dozen other young women were studying radio mechanics. Miss Blodgett had but recently passed her examinations with high marks, was waiting for the day when a ship would be hers.

In addition, many other girls are now taking lessons in the intricacies of modern ship transmitters and receivers, how to operate them, and how to read and receive code messages at upwards of 20 words per minute.

Plans Underway For Church Camp

Plans underway at the present time indicate a successful week at Knapawaik Beach, August 2, 3 and 4, when the A.Y.P.A. annual summer camp is held, officials of the organization said this week.

Norman Pickard, president, and his committee has drawn up a program of camp and details are being worked out at regular meetings. General invitation is issued to those young people interested in attending the camp. Registration should be made to branch presidents or to Miss Kay Croft, 1121 80 street, not later than July 28.

Chinese Scouts Aid Native Land

The part being played by Chinese Boy Scouts and Girl Guides in the war-transplanted life of that country and the role of Scouting and Guiding in helping shape the character of the boys and girls of future China are acknowledged by Madame Chiang Kai-Shek in her recent book.

Writes the Chinese President's wife: "When we came to this river we saw a procession of Boy Scouts and Girl Guides. I was surprised to see them in this far-away part of western China, but we encountered them everywhere. The Boy Scout uniforms in red shirt and parcel of the student life of China, no matter how far or in what direction one may travel."

"I have seen them here in sight of the snow-capped mountains of Tibet, away in the north-west near the burning sands of the Gobi desert, in the lush regions of Kweichow in the tropics of Yunnan, in the remote Kweichow, and everywhere through the vast regions of China, North to South China."

"They should have tremendous influence in time to come upon the character of our people, especially the literature of our youth. Our girls must always be 'good Scouts'."

GIRLS AT CAMP

"One of the Best"

A Tribute to Sgt. Observer W. A. Bartleman, R.C.A.F., of Edmonton, Who Lost His Life Saturday, on Active Service Overseas

By BERT NIGHTINGALE, JR., Editor, Bulletin Youth Page

ONE of the most popular members of Edmonton's youngest set, W. A. "Bart" Bartleman, Sergeant-Observer with His Majesty's Royal Canadian Air Force, was killed Saturday last in an airplane accident near Oxford, England.

News of Bart's death came as a shock not only to his grief-stricken parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bartleman, of 12802 104 avenue, but also to hundreds of young men and women in the city and district.

Personally, hearing of Bart's passing was a bitter cancellation of a friendship, which, as long as I knew him, was one calling for the deepest pride.

He conformed to many memories. There were memories of Bart as a member of the B.Y. Central Council of 1935-36. There were memories too of working with Bart in past Boys' and Girls' Pairs. The last year that he was connected with the organization was the year that Harvey Porter was managing director. Bart was called upon at the last minute to assist, and his vigorous personality, his ever-bubbling character, and his big, happy grin that accompanied his "gang" greeting, will never be forgotten by any who worked with him.

Bart wasn't the sort of chap who would want to be thought of in glowing phrases or biographical. As I knew him, Bart would be happy to be regarded as a "well guy, one of the best." Bart's departure for overseas was no good, but his memory will never pass.

He was truly a swell guy, one of the best.

Dorothy Dix Says:

Dear Miss Dix—I am 28 years old. Have been at work for eight years and hold a responsible position with a big firm. If I am old enough to go to an office every day, making important decisions, being guided by the destiny of a prosperous business, then by all that is decent and good, I am not old enough to choose my own friends and know when not to do anything. I am not wild or disorderly. On the contrary, I am circumspect and discreet. My friends are all respectable men and women.

But my parents treat me as if I were a babe in arms. I am not allowed to make any decisions, nor have any friends except those chosen by my parents. I have to wait until 10 o'clock at the latest. Otherwise I have no time to go to the office and argue with the next day's work. I have been thinking of leaving home and renting an apartment so I can have some personal liberty, but I have leave home as a great part of my life circles around it.

I love my parents, but I can't stand being treated like a child, and I don't want to take the control away from them. I am trying to get away from my parents. I have been thinking of leaving home and renting an apartment so I can have some personal liberty, but I have leave home as a great part of my life circles around it.

ANSWER:—This problem of the business girl who feels that if she has enough character and intelligence to lead down a road, she has sense enough to know when to take care of herself. She has she has emancipated herself from family control, but whose parents continue to treat her as if she were a little child. She is feeble-minded to boot, and who has she to ask permission to go to the corner grocery, is a very important one and one that is in daily acquaintance with thousands of homes.

For Father and Mother and Sally look at the matter from different points of view. To the parents Sally is still a mere infant, incapable of deciding anything for herself, and they feel they are only doing their duty by keeping her under their own direction of every step and going only with the people they choose for her.

On her part Sally knows that she is living in a different world, with different codes and manners, from the world in which her parents grew up. She knows that as far as experience and knowledge of the world goes, she is twice as sophisticated as her parents are and far better able to protect herself than they are. And she knows that whether she keeps good or goes wild depends entirely on herself and will not be the result of her being made to come home with the children.

So there you are, and all that matters and fathers' iron-bound rules do is to make the girl determined to break out of her prison and to make her own way and to have with some other girl. Or maybe a boy. Anyway, she is free, and it is a great loss the background of her home and family which are her parents' protection, and also she loses the restraining influence her father and mother would exercise over her if they were not so tyrannical and unreasonable.

So it does look as if the parents would have to come up-to-date if they want to keep their girls at home. DOROTHY DIX.

McKenney On Bridge

By WM. E. MCKENNEY, America's Card Authority

When your partner opens with one of a suit, don't go to the trump to show a "bust." You can show that by passing. The response of one of your trumps should show you have some high cards, from about one-half to one and one-half high cards, with probably two suits stopped. Above all, if your hand is borderline, bid two of the suit that you can, in preference to one no trump.

Medico Welders Open Modern Plant on 101 Street For Training

Commercial Welding Is Operated, Also School, Auto Body Repair Shop

Mr. Fred Sawchuk of the Medico Welders has secured his connection with the British American Oil Co., and moved to his new premises located at 10850 101 Street, where he will devote his entire time to the management of the Medico Welders and commercial Body Works, and the Weld-Rite Training School.

Manager

It was 11 years ago last winter that Fred and Johnny Sawchuk opened a modest fitting station at 101 street and 111 avenue. It was a down to earth proposition in the way of work, but with fair dealing and first-class workmanship, and the patronage of their many friends and customers, they built up the business which is now well-known in northern Alberta today. Welding is another triumph of North American science that is assuming a place of ever-growing importance in Canada through more of her vast potential weight into the war for the preservation of freedom.

service combines the special features of these two modes of travel at a minimum cost.

Briefly, the details of the new plane-auto service, according to the announcement are as follows: Before boarding the plane, a traveler may telegraph the driver-staff station in the distant city of destination for an Air line ticket which will assist traveler. The cost of the message, up to 25 cents, will be credited on the rental charge for the car. Air traveler's passenger identification card or receipt for fare will be honored within seven days of travel date as qualification for car rental at special rate. Special arrangement the deposit required for daily rentals.

The typical schedule of rates in the majority of cities is $4.00 service charge, per day and 6 cents per mile. This includes all car expenses such as gasoline, oil and insurance. If the driver-staff station brings the car directly to the airport to meet the incoming passenger, a small charge will be made for this service.

Plane-auto service will be available every day, including Sundays and holidays.

All air lines operating into Canada co-operate in this plane-auto travel plan.

Plane-Auto Service Now Operating Here

Arrangements have been completed between the major airlines of the United States and Canada and Hertz Drive-Itself System, Inc., to greatly facilitate the movement of air travel passengers in the commercial and pleasure fields in practically every city in Canada, according to an announcement made today by Mr. Pinckston, local Drive-Itself Station manager.

The new plan, to be known as "Plane-Auto Service," provides for automotive transportation for air travel passengers upon arrival at their destination. Although available to all types of air travelers, this plan has a particular appeal to commercial travellers, inasmuch as it provides them with ground transportation to make a number of calls in the vicinity of the airport city in which they headquarters.

"Under this new Plane-Auto Service plan air travelers take a plane to their destination and upon arrival have a private car at their disposal. There are many advantages to this plan," according to Mr. Pinckston. "Travelers are afforded the comfortable and speedy service of the airplane, at the same time, arriving at their destination refreshed and untried and able to make their own time table of calls for the day, or as long as they desire. This combines all the advantages of the airplane with the undeniable advantage of an automobile in the commercial and every day trips. These latter advantages are especially apparent when a traveler has several stops to make, within a few miles of each other, including the carrying of merchandise articles."

"During recent years there has been a tremendous development in air travel which brings cities hundreds of miles apart to within an hour or two of each other. This still does not solve the transportation problem of the traveler once at the airport. The new plane-auto

The Patient

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE
ONCE the fact that Wu had revealed Jeta was sending food from the house to the hospital for Barry, made Kay's attitude plausible. If she could successfully mastermind as the Chinese servant boy, she could slip out of the room and the house and have a chance to reach Barry.

She listened carefully as Wu explained just where she should take the tray as carried from the room. Where she would find the one for Barry, and how to get to the hospital from the house.

When you follow directions exactly, there will be no need for you to talk to anyone," he said. "If you can avoid talking, you have a good chance to escape detection."

With a pat of encouragement from Melody and Jeta, she slipped out of the room and into the hallway.

As she walked down the corridor off to the kitchen, she heard voices coming from the living room. From the couch, she knew it must be Jeta. It was much different from the wild, half-melodious she had played previously when she threatened his emotional storm by threatening Kay's life.

The nurse was soft, pleasant, peaceful. It was a clue to Jeta's thought and hope. They must be very certain of herself now. Kay carried with everything under her tight control.

She found the kitchen without difficulty, deposited her tray, and found the one she needed. She had found the one she needed. She had found the one she needed.

Not daring to turn around and face the chef, Kay nodded her head. Viciously, pushed open the screen, and started on the long walk across the yard and the mile area to the building Wu had described as the hospital.

It really was no more than three city blocks, but it seemed like a mile to many miles to the girl. She didn't meet anyone along the way, although the imagination that eyes were watching her from behind every tree and building.

HOSPITAL
The hospital was easily identified. As it was the nearest building in the entire mile area. It was painted white, and there were white curtains at the windows. None of the other buildings was painted.

She mounted the steps, and as she was about to maneuver the tray onto one arm to open the screen door, a nurse suddenly appeared and pushed it open.

"Let's go to the doctor," she said, with a smile. Kay nodded, but said nothing. She followed the nurse down a hallway, and entered a large room at the corner of the building.

Her heart leaped within her. She saw Barry, lying in bed. He looked thin, very thin, and his face was pale. The thin which she had remembered was completely gone.

If the nurse hadn't been there, she would have put down the tray and flung herself onto her knees to comfort him, so obviously ill, to talk to him, to try to help him get well.

His face was turned toward her. His face was turned toward her. His face was turned toward her.

Leave the tray on the table, the nurse ordered. "I'll take care of it."

There was nothing for Kay to do but leave the room, as she walked slowly outside. She lingered at the end of the hallway, hoping the nurse would leave soon, and she would have a chance to slip into the room for a few minutes.

She hadn't thought of what she would say to Barry when she did speak. She wanted him to get well and strong as quickly as possible. She wanted the old Barry, who had known so well, back again for himself without being influenced by an unscrupulous woman like Jeta and dishonest secretary like Morrow.

It seemed months since she had left home in the face of the opposition of her parents and brother and sister, determined to force an explanation from Barry. She realized with a shock that it was scarcely more than a week.

So much had happened in that time, that she could scarcely remember how she had thrilled when Barry's first visit had been and he held her in his arms and asked her to marry him. She had said yes, half way across the continent.

McCoy Health Service
This is the time of year when literally millions of families pack up and travel for many miles for the much looked for yearly vacation.

There are two ways of taking this vacation. One is a long road of enervating activity, rushing from one place to another, trying to use in two weeks what would normally take weeks or more. On the other hand, it can be a constructive vacation, during which each member of the family is enabled to express himself in that complete relaxation for which a true vacation is designed.

If Dad likes to relax around the house, and if Mom likes to relax in a complete vacation, then they should not be overlooked when the family is on vacation, and it is remembered that the two weeks spent in enjoyable health building, by any group, divides in increased resistance against disease, so that the body will be able to offset and resist the rigors of the coming winter. Most of us are indoor workers, and this vacation season is a chance for us to get out and breathe in the grandeur of the great open spaces. From the down to the message boy, there is a great release to the sight of a field of wildflowers or the majesty of a canyon. There is something in such sights which soothes the Jangled nerves and makes us realize just how unimportant we are, and how vast is a broader outlook on the universe.

The main thing in relaxation with no vacation is that the object of this period is remembering. During this time there are great many helpful things which may be done to help in building health and ease may be induced in by the entire family to good advantage.

There is probably no better exercise than swimming, and those members of the family who do not like to get into the water may gain great benefit from sunbathing. Of course, I should add a word of warning on this subject of taking sunbaths—many a good vacation has been ruined by sunburn.

Avoid over exposure to the rays of the sun, and remember that if a little dose of a little good, a lot may do a lot of harm. After two weeks of relaxing, swimming, golfing, reading and relaxing, you will return to your work with a brighter outlook and with renewed vigor, determined to do a better job. I suggest that if you are planning a vacation, write for a copy of Dr. Frank McCoy's article entitled "Constructive Vacations." Just address your request to the McCoy Health Service, enclosing a large self-addressed envelope and 5 cents in stamps and your copy will be promptly mailed.

Address questions regarding health matters to The McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Bulletin, 1131 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, California.

When they try to do something and fail, and none of them is helped in getting rid of his emotion, when other adults stand around and say, "I don't see why you can't do that it ought to be simple enough."

Set the stage for success and try to curb your own emotion when the child fails. He's going to succeed eventually if he can be persuaded from feeling too great a sense of discouragement.

When he tries to ride a new trick, stand behind him and push down first one foot and then the other until he gets the feeling of alternate feet going around in circles. He will. And if he gets stuck with both feet going around, let him off and wheel the trick away until he is over his mad emotion about it.

Let his clothes go flat on the floor. They look much less complicated in that position. Put the waist of the pants toward him as he stands up and extend each leg. Then let him sit down on the floor and push his feet into the proper slots.

As for sweaters—lay them with the head toward the child, so that he can put his hands in the bottom and extend each arm and it will slide into place, and he need only push his head through the neck.

But above all, whether it be in these situations or in play ones, don't advertise your own discouragement or your belief that he is backward and clumsy. The parent's anger and shame so influence the child's estimate of himself that soon he loses the courage to try new and difficult things.

"Helping the Slow Child," one of our leaflets, suggests ways in which we can be of aid to the child who dawdles overmuch. You may have it without charge if you will write to me in care of the newspaper, enclosing with your request a three-cent stamp. Self-addressed envelope for mailing.

novation proved a tremendous success in Toronto and is being hailed with delight by tired parents everywhere who show appreciations.

At Phillips' annual diving champion of Canada, who lives in Toronto, will present "Aquadeed" as one of the outstanding features of "Frolic-Land." Also seen in this part of the show will be Sam Howard, acrobatic diver; Myron Martin, Pacific coast diving champion; and William Vincent, known as the underwater queen. Sixteen "mermaids," chosen for their physical perfection and beauty in addition to their swimming ability, will swim in unison to make several of the production numbers.

WORLD'S FATTIST

Heading the roster of fat girls in a weighty revue will be Big Beauty, who is advertised to tip the scales at 497 pounds.

"She's just about the fattest girl in all the world and she's just as jolly as she is fat," the bankers will tell in their immortal style. Boush has a punching bag as part of her daily routine, and explains how that a girl has to be careful how she punts her figure.

Genevieve Carson will present her "Punchy Beauty," a troupe of talented similes who walk on stilts, ride bicycles, roller-skate and per-

"Oriental Frolics," a girl show de luxe, will star glamorous Miss Montaine, a Belgian refugee who has been in the heat of famous night spots throughout Europe until Hitler turned that continent into a field of death and horror. The show is replete with captivating choruses and dances along with flashy musical numbers marked by pace and big-league timing.

Another fine show will be "Artistic and Models," presented by Thelma Feltz, French, whose productions are her much acclaim as one of the world's fair in recent years. The beauties will bring to life several fantasies by modern artists.

Brought to America in 1930 by Frank "Bring 'Em Back Alive" Buck, a troupe of "pink-headed" pagans from the Belgian Congo will appear in Jack Halligan's big circus-style show. Because their heads were tightly bound in babyhood, these strange semi-savages have tiny heads and little intelligence, and resemble the monkey in both face and mind.

John Kerich, proprietor of the Royal beer parlor and hotel, testified that Brown and "another young fellow" came to his establishment between 12 and 1 p.m. Saturday and had six or seven glasses of beer. Brown, he alleged, then asked if anyone wanted a ride in his plane for a few minutes. He said he was not sure of the time, but he believed it was between 1 and 2 p.m.

At the time of the crash, the plane was flying low over the field and was seen by three other witnesses. The plane was seen to be in the air for a few minutes before it crashed.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Goodall, who farm about one-half mile from Ryer, described watching electric power lines about 100 yards away from their place. Goodall said the aircraft seemed to make a sharp turn and then crashed suddenly. The couple ran to the wreckage immediately.

Fred Gray, who owns the farm on which the plane crashed, said he saw the plane crash and saw the wreckage.

Lightning Is Being Fought With Science

by pranks of the untamed electrical forces of the heavens, a Bulletin reporter viewed a permanent power engineer on a recent afternoon. By way of testing off on the subject, the reporter confessed to the engineer that he had always been "scared to death by lightning."

"You just keep right on being scared to death," because the scientist who are responsible for the jolt continuing to flow steadily through thousands of miles of high voltage line and through all kinds of expensive and valuable equipment, the engineer replied.

Lightning breaks a whole lot of rules, as well as just about everything else that happens to be in the way, the power man pointed out.

"About the only way to be sure of keeping out of trouble when lightning flashes close to us is to be in the way," the reporter was told.

When he reflects on the fact that during a severe electrical storm, such as those experienced here during the past month, there are millions of volts of electric energy being hurled from the clouds toward the earth, the marvel is that more and greater destruction is not wrought and not that homes and business and steel cars are stalled for a few minutes during a storm.

ATTRACTIVE TARGETS

And the real marvel is that man is able to protect his own ordered electric power system from lightning functioning with little or no interruption while the great uncontrollable forces of the universe in the form of lightning strike and power lines and transformer equipment.

The defenses against this enemy of the clouds are many and ingenious in design.

Edmonton gets a part of the power used from a power dam, 175 miles away. All through the last summer months, the high voltage lines and all of the electrical equipment at the power plant and the lines are operated, are under almost daily attack.

When a storm gathers, the electric static in the clouds is released and by discharge from the clouds to another, as in the case of sheet lightning, or from the cloud to the earth. And when lightning strikes other cloud handy then old mother earth is in for quite a beating.

When lightning strikes a power line or strikes the ground in close proximity to the line, it causes a surge, in the normal flow of electric energy. In other words it steps up the voltage many times and when one considers that the main power lines from Glenora carry a voltage of 132,000 volts, it can be easily seen that an instantaneous increase in voltage of this figure would simply raise "Old Ned" to 100 protection were provided.

Severe lightning would destroy all equipment operated on the line and even burn the power line itself if there were no protection installed to protect the engineer said.

Every 10 miles or so all the way from the dam, maintenance currents is guarded against the assaults of lightning by a trip switch. And in the city itself, the transformer and generator equipment is protected by lightning arresters.

A lightning arrester may be in many different designs, but in common are consists of a series of arcing gaps surrounding a carbon insulating material, which means, connected with the earth. By this method the average flash of lightning, which causes the induced surge above normal in the power line is dissipated in heat as it goes through the high resistance of the arrester to the ground.

As an additional safeguard there is the trip switch. When the discharge from the cloud induces such a terrific increase that the ordinary arrester is not large enough to handle the extra load the switch cuts off the section of the line under bombardment momentarily. It is said that the lights on the tower flicker at that time, but the power is not cut off so powerful that it trips through all protective agencies. Then the repair crew gets to work, and for a time a certain section of the community may be without light or power.

But this doesn't happen very often. And the credit for this can go to the research work that is being done experimentally with new materials and devices to defeat lightning.

In laboratories in many parts of the world man is now producing artificial lightning. The results of this research are being used in the design of lightning rods and lightning protection systems.

The best material and device, after centuries of research, is still a standard equipment and man has advanced another step toward complete triumph over the lightning.

GRANDVIEW HOTEL

There is a perfectly grounded belief that lightning never strikes twice in the same place. Of course, untrue and the only reason for this belief may be in the fact that when lightning hits an object, that object is seldom there to be struck a second time. The Empire State building in New York City has been struck thousands of times.
